Mr. P.J. O'Reilly; VP Innovation & Technology Transfer, Enterprise Ireland

"I have watched Olive build MediStori as a business for almost 4 years. She attended a training programme that I delivered in Castlebar and I have engaged with her since as an unofficial mentor. She was an exemplary student of business - open to learn, a contributor to discussions, a reflector on what the content meant for her business, and the first to implement agreed action plans. She is a brilliant networker. People like her. This means she gets things done even when resources are stretched. She has a brilliant grasp of patient needs and has developed a wonderful product. She is also able to share this insight in presentations to networking groups. Personally, Olive is very passionate, has great empathy, is hugely generous, has strength and resilience and is courageous when facing new situations. I am delighted to write this recommendation on LinkedIn and wish her the best in work/ business and family and offer my continued support and friendship."

Mr. Donncha Hughes; Trainer, Mentor and Start-Up Business Advisor

"I met Olive at the National Digital Research Centre, where I participated as an idea owner for a new innovative product to improve healthcare through Mercurial's interactive educational and feedback platform. Olive became a mentor to me over a six-week period during the eHealth Ireland and Eir sponsored pre-accelerator programme. Olives engaging nature and work ethic were clear from our first meeting when her creativity, energy and passion for the healthcare sector was a like a light in the room. It was clear that Olive has her finger on the beating pulse of the current and future of health in Ireland. She provided a support that was invaluable, refreshingly honest and drawing on her own experiences opened up conversations that were two way in nature instead of the 'I know best' that creates a barrier for most mentors.

There is no doubt but that Olives connections in healthcare and in the start-up world are as a result of her incredible passion for health, innovation and problem solving ability. Her systematic approach to problem solving and iterative improvement matched with her natural and practiced skills of marketing and messaging prove a powerful combination. I have been enlightened by the power of storytelling through Olive, something she does so effortlessly but creates a memorable emotional impact on everyone she engages with. It's a skill I will continue to practice and improve those throughout my life both professionally and personally. Making it personal Olive allows complex and 'barrier' language like that in healthcare to be broke down and built up again to make those words productive and create an impactful environment using simple messaging.

Olive offers practical advice about priority with 'don't worry about that yet' and 'I will introduce you, when you are ready' ringing in my ears she provided structure and clarity to the never ending demands of a start-up. Teasing out a clear picture to empower me to move forward was a subtle but effective technique. Outside of gaining invaluable insight into healthcare I gained confidence, focus and delivery skills from Olive including call to action triggers."

Ms. Grainne Blount; Co-Founder Mercurial

"Olive is an amazing person, not only to work for but to be friends with. She's incredibly hard working, magnanimous, inspiring, and selfless. She doesn't class herself as better than anyone else, she doesn't even like being called boss or CEO. Olive is probably one of the most detail orientated people I've ever met, and you can see that from her detailed reports, to the MediStori, she won't stop until her creative vision is perfect. I've always admired Olive's ability to command a room and get people on board with her concept - even people who were initially on completely different pages. I honestly believe she can do anything she puts her mind to.

Olive possesses an entrepreneurial spirit that you rarely see and is incredibly inspiring. My expectations of what a boss should be like after working with her is sky high, nobody will be able to surpass my experiences of working with Olive."

Ms. Alice Butler; Marketing Executive at Happy Marketing & Media

"From initial set-up, we enlisted the mentorship of Olive O'Connor to help grow our organisation in a sustainable way, while always retaining a friendly and positive environment in our centres. Olive herself strikes the perfect balance between logical and creative thinking, and has afforded us the opportunity to overcome many challenges along the way as a result of her entrepreneurial prowess.

She has guided us around: Leadership issues – seeking, training, and communicating with high quality staff who believe in and endeavour to carry the Sugru ethos; structural issues – discussing the complications around company structure and boards of directors – not/for profit – and working through this with us until we arrived at the most suitable situation.

Financial issues – carrying out analyses on potential revenue streams, while brainstorming our resources in order to identify potential options and capitalize on our existing income; Management issues – analytically evaluating pitfalls in our management styles, which focused largely around time management, systems and policies, while introducing us to new software and techniques; Marketing issues – creating an environment both in-house and online in order to reach more potential clients and designing an online marketing strategy to drive sales of products; without Olive, we wouldn't be where we are today – she has been an inherent part of the Sugru team.

We personally believe that what makes Olive stand out is that she never forgets about the clients, our service-users, those that we founded this organisation for – Olive has an unshakable moral compass."
